

S.A. Outlines Plans For Semester

By JEFF ANDORFER

"I was very satisfied with the results of the first semester's activities," comments Joe Sloyan, S.A. president. "Student participation was our most important asset this last semester, and it will continue to be our most important ingredient in this new semester."

Student participation does seem to be Sloyan's major ingredient. Starting with the great success in the freshman talent show to the lumberjack competition at Lake Banet, the main idea behind his projects are to get the students participating, or at least cheering on those who are participating.

"I'm putting in as much time and energy as possible to initiate programs that will have a solid foundation this year so they may be continued after I graduate," Sloyan explains.

So far in his term as president, Sloyan has initiated approximately eight different activities, such as the talent show and lumberjack competition. In the upcoming semester, Sloyan plans to initiate at least nine new ideas. Among them, the traditional valentine's dance on Feb. 16 is promised to be improved over past years. Other plans include Saint Joe's own version of the dating game Feb. 7.

Also planned is a special weekend for last year's seniors to return for their own weekend.

"In the past, weekends for returning alumni have been crowded and jam-packed, as seen on Homecoming and Little 500 weekend," comments Sloyan.

"My idea is to set aside the first weekend in March for returning seniors of last year."

Personalized letters of invitation will be sent to the seniors.

Sloyan also has an intercollegiate competition in the works.

"I thought it would be a good idea to take the champions of our intramural activities and have them play the champions of other schools," he explains.

The tentative date for this is Apr. 13. Along with these activities, there is a pig-out competition of eating contests between the dorms, set for Jan. 29, plus a Guinness records weekend at a still-to-be determined date where dorms will participate to break various records. Another activity planned is a scavenger hunt, called "Little Indy," scheduled for Mar. 30. There is also a swim party Jan. 23 and a roller skating party Jan. 31.

Helping Sloyan in planning are newly-elected S.A. officers: treasurer Kris Costa, and social vice-president Margaret Stack.

Stack says "I am going to try and get better-quality bands at the mixers. I'm going to try and get an idea what the students want to hear in the way of bands and I'll do my best to get them here."

"Again, I would like to stress that it is the students who make our activities work," concludes Sloyan. "We seek to live by our motto — 'The S.A. — thanks to you, it's working!'"

NEWSPAPER OF THE SAINT JOSEPH'S COLLEGE COMMUNITY
Vol. 43 Rensselaer, Indiana, Thursday, January 17, 1980 No. 8

SJC Joins Educational Project Of Council For Small Colleges

Saint Joseph's College has been invited to participate in the first phase of the Project on Quality Undergraduate Education (QUE) of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges.

During this first phase, a special QUE Committee chaired by John Groppe, associate professor of English, will research and eventually designate a new or existing campus academic program to be developed to a high degree of educational quality.

Approximately 200 colleges have been invited to participate in phase one, which concludes next Mar. 24, when each participating school must submit a proposal for admission to the final phases of the project. Up to 80 colleges will be invited to participate in the full project, which runs from April, 1980 to October, 1983.

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., has provided $1 million to the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges to help these schools bring "a high degree of educational quality to a single academic program."

Groppe explains that "it is the belief of the Kellogg Foundation and the Council that high-quality educational services dedicated to the growth and development of the individual student is the key to the future of the small independent college. The QUE project is concerned about the quality of the educational process measured by what actually happens to promote the cognitive and affective development of the individual student through the academic program."

A college's general reputation for high educational quality often can be traced to a small number of academic programs done well over time. However, the Council emphasizes that a college seeking to improve its general reputation during the 1980's should concentrate on at least one academic program that holds greatest single promise for promoting the growth and development of the individual student.

Project QUE will provide four years of services designed to assist each participating college in bringing high quality to a single academic program.

Joining Groppe on Saint Joseph's QUE Committee are Father Charles Banet, president; Willaim Del Principe, assistant professor of accounting and finance; Dr. William Downard, associate professor of history; Dr. Robert Garrity, vice-president for academic and student affairs; Father William Kramer, professor of chemistry; Dr. Andrew Mehall, professor of biology; Dr. John Nichols, Core curriculum coordinator, and Dr. Janet Snizek, assistant professor of psychology.

Phase two of the QUE project involves designing and developing the selected program during July, 1980 to August, 1981; phase three includes pilot testing of the design during April, 1981 to August, 1982 and phase four involves implementing, evaluating and disseminating the design during September, 1982 through October, 1983.

"Our participation in this project can be an important academic step forward as Saint Joseph's moves into the 1980's," Groppe points out. "Colleges that want to prosper in the challenging times ahead will do so only by offering students high-quality, well-designed academic programs that meet their educational needs. We at Saint Joseph's are well aware of this necessity and we feel our efforts in this QUE project are a most important step in continuing to improve our product of higher education."

Plan Now For 1980-81 Aid

"Now is the time to begin thinking about financial aid for the 1980-81 school year," stresses David Hoover, director of financial aids at Saint Joseph's College.

"Anyone who wishes to apply for financial aid for the 1980-81 school year must complete a financial aid form and an institutional financial aid application," he adds. "These forms can be picked up in the financial aid office now."

Once the financial aid form has been filed and the proper box checked, involved students will automatically be considered for the basic grant program. No other applications are necessary; this is also true for Indiana residents who want to be considered for the Indiana state scholarship and grant programs.

Hoover says all students are encouraged to apply for financial aid for two basic reasons: 1. A student will never know if he qualifies unless he applies, and 2. With the passage of the Middle Income Students Assistance Act, some families who were not eligible for financial aid in the past may now qualify.

Hoover plans periodic financial aid counseling sessions during the second semester to answer any questions students may have about the financial aid form or financial aid in general.

Hoover adds that students must complete their applications for Indiana state scholarships and grants or freedom of choice grants by Mar. 1; applications for Saint Joseph's College institutional aid must be submitted to Hoover's office by May 1.

"Saint Joseph's offers a widely-varied program of financial aid designed to meet the needs of many different students and their families," Hoover concludes. "My office exists to serve our students, and I welcome the opportunity to sit down with students to help them locate a suitable financial aid package."

Rich Wheeler, assistant director of student residence life, explained new policies affecting campus dormitory life during a special meeting of the Student Senate last Thursday. Details and insights into the new policies will be reported in the Jan. 31 issue of Stuff.

Let's Get Involved

It is the time of year when students begin to feel apathetic towards school. Returning from a long vacation, students aren't in the mood for classes or studying. Students, now, are just waiting and hoping they make it to the end of the semester.

Indeed, students can get bored, restless or anxious for the end of the winter semester, in view of the academic work and the confining weather. But if students would just take the initiative to apply themselves in functions around campus, they would soon realize the importance of the social aspect of college and not just the academic.

Students should participate in the various activities around campus, such as intramurals, dorm functions, club events and also events sponsored by the S.A. and the HSUB with their mixers and games.

Some students feel that the semester goes by slowly, but if they get involved, the time will go much faster and they will soon see the end of the semester at hand.

College is not just an academic encounter, but a social one as well. One can grow as much through social activities as through academic functions.

Take responsibility for your life and get involved in what YOU want to do.

Bettinger Receives NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship

Mike Bettinger, standout student and football player at Saint Joseph's College, has been named a recipient of one of the 33 prestigious National Collegiate Athletic Association postgraduate scholarships.

The scholarship award is for $2,000 and each recipient may use the award for postgraduate study at the university or professional school of his choice. Bettinger is the first Saint Joseph's athlete to win an NCAA scholarship since basketball All-American Jim Thordsen was honored in 1975.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, says, "considering the number of potential candidates across the country, this award stands as a significant honor for Mike Bettinger and a tribute to Saint Joseph's College."

Bettinger, a three-year letterman as a defensive back for the football Pumas, has already been named an Academic All-American performer for three consecutive years, and in 1979 he was named the most valuable defensive back in the Heartland Collegiate Conference.

He has achieved a perfect 4.00 cumulative grade index through his first six semesters at Saint Joseph's. In addition to earning Dean's List honors each semester, he has been ecumenism chairperson of the campus Pastoral Council, a nominee for the Danforth Fellowship, the Paul Hinkle Scholar-Athlete Award of the Heartland Collegiate Conference and campus coordinator of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Bettinger is a senior elementary education major and a 1976 graduate of Arrowhead High School in Hartland, Wis.

He was captain of the Pumas' 8-2-0 squad in 1979, when he intercepted two passes, led the team in punt returns with 12 returns for an 11.4 average, and was the team leader in solo tackles.

One Point Of View

Internship Offers Insight, Experience

By JAMES GWYN

During the past eight months two other Saint Joe seniors and myself were involved in this college's internship program with the IBM Corporation.

Professional internship programs are structured to give the intern valuable experience and insight into his or her desired career, and these objectives were definitely accomplished in my case.

I worked in Oak Brook, Illinois, within the General Systems Division of IBM. Some of the job responsibilities included: program maintenance, operator training instruction, marketing situations, and demonstration of equipment.

I found that teaching operator training class and giving demonstrations were extremely valuable. These situations gave me firsthand contact with computer users and prospects. This program also gave me a chance to realize my potential in the professional world. I am much more confident at this point than prior to the programs.

Any apprenticeship during a college education should be used to the fullest advantage of a student trying to plan for the future. I was able to view business for what it is worth and see an opportunity to use it to my benefit. All employees are expected to be productive for their company. Why shouldn't one try to use this philosophy in reverse?

Even though the financial benefits should play a significant role in choosing employment, it is also wise to consider reference ability, future educational possibilities, and a potential self-reliant employment situation.

All students preparing for or considering any type of cooperative educational program should, during the internship, not only seize the educational opportunity, but also seek to establish direction for the future. This will help considerably in reaching one's potential — which is the purpose of a college education.

Now that I am back on campus, I can look back and see specific ways to progress toward my future goals. I definitely see the IBM internship program as a positive influence on our college community and on participating students.

Juniors Arrange Memorial Fund

By DAN RODRIGUEZ

Saint Joseph's junior class is presently conducting a scholarship drive in honor of Dan "Bucky" Mauch. The goal is to establish at least a $300 scholarship (possibly more) to be awarded annually to a worthy student or incoming student.

Dan Mauch's father will soon recommend to the college a few qualifications that the Mauch family would like all prospective recipients of the scholarship award to exemplify.

"Our immediate goal is a minimum of $3,000," notes Janet Burkhardt, junior class vice-president. "The interest from this will provide an annual award of $300."

The junior class has been collecting donations since Dec. 10, and reminds the campus that anyone can contribute to this fund at any time this year or in the future; one doesn't have to be a junior to donate. The junior class explains that all checks should be made payable to The Junior Class (memo: Dan Mauch Scholarship Fund).

All donations are taking place in individual dorms. If anyone has any questions as to who their dorm representative is, they can contact either Janet Burkhardt or Joe Hogan, junior class president.

"The more participants who take part in this drive, the better the outcome will be," says Burkhardt. "This is a very simple, yet meaningful and lasting way to keep the memory of Bucky alive."

Conference Games On Tap For Cagers

By MONIQUE LACOUTURE

Four of the top contenders for the Great Lakes Valley Conference crown will be matched up against the Pumas in four straight conference games beginning Saturday night and continuing through Jan. 28.

Indiana State-Evansville will be the first of these teams when they come to Alumni Fieldhouse Saturday night at 7:30. Capitalizing on their early success and balanced scoring which enabled them to win seven of their first ten games, ISUE is the favorite to capture the GLVC championship in 1980.

Six-foot four-inch guard Clovis McDowell is the team's top scorer, averaging 13 points per game, while five-foot ten-inch guard Dan Labhart is the team leader in assists. ISUE puts more power in their front line with six-foot seven-inch forward Lynnwood Cowan and "tower of strength" center John Hollinden, who at seven-foot six-inches is the second-tallest college cager in the U.S.

Kentucky Wesleyan comes into the home of the Pumas Monday night at 7:30. A darkhorse favorite to win the conference title, Wesleyan is led by six-foot five-inch forward Larry Patrick, who has been scoring 12.1 points per game and grabbing 6.2 rebounds. Six-foot five-inch forward Bunky Lewis follows with an average of 11.9 points and 6.9 rebounds.

Saint Joseph's takes to the road for its following two games, beginning next Thursday at Bellarmine College, another conference title contender. Six-foot four-inch forward Bruce Olliges is the team's scoring leader with 21.8 points per game, while six-foot eleven-inch John Wiegel has been contributing 12.8 points and 9.1 boards, adding some rough inside strength for any challenger to beat.

Ashland College in Ohio will be the last stop in this all-important stretch of conference games for the Pumas. Although Ashland started the basketball season with a 5-5 split of their first ten games, the Eagles are still favored to be right in the thick of things by the end of the season. Two of their top scorers, Fred Graham with 17.9 points and Ray Donald on the inside with 12.1 points, are team leaders. Ashland is allowing just over 100 points per game but scoring 97.5 points per outing.

Puma Women On Road In January

By ED FISETTE

Saint Joseph's women's basketball team is faced with the unusual situation of playing all of its January games away. Taylor University, originally scheduled as a home game for Jan. 22, was dropped from the women's schedule, leaving SJC strictly on the road this month.

Taylor had accidentally scheduled two games on that date and nothing could be worked out between them and the Pumas. SJC plays at Saint Francis (Fort Wayne) on Jan. 26, followed by a date at Butler three days later.

"Butler will be a tough one (game) because they lost only a few people from last year's squad and no one of any major importance," comment

SJC coach Susan Buntin. "They beat us last year, but we have improved and they will see a different Puma team this year."

The Pumas opened the new year with a convincing 73-40 win over Anderson College. SJC hit well from outside in the first half in taking a 36-19 advantage into the locker room.

High scorer for Saint Joe was Jennifer Voreis with 16 points and eight rebounds. She was the only Puma in double figures and also had five assists.

"It was a good team effort in which everyone got to play, and to score," remarked Buntin. "We had a lot of turnovers, but that is to be expected after the long layoff."

Saint Joe hit 48 percent from the field on 32-66 shooting and 9-21 from the free throw line for 43 percent. Anderson connected on 15-45 from the field for 33 percent and 10-22 for 45 percent from the free throw line. SJC won the battle of the boards, 36-31.

Last Saturday, Indiana Central beat the Puma women by 78-52 as SJC was plagued by 25 fouls and 19 turnovers. Saint Joe trailed by 28-22 at halftime and Central pulled away in the second half behind 45 percent field goal accuracy. Voreis led SJC with 16 points.

Saint Joe won a squeaker over Marion College early in December, 62-61. In the game, the Pumas had 22 turnovers, which caused Buntin to reflect "I am glad we won. We created the close game with all those turnovers."

Voreis led the Pumas to a 77-36 win over Purdue-Calumet on Dec. 12 by scoring 21 points and grabbing nine rebounds. Linda Radivan was the only other Puma in double figures with 16.

SJC shot 33-78 from the floor for 39 percent and 11-18 from the free throw stripe for 61 percent. Purdue-Calumet hit 15-46 for 32 percent from the field and 6-18 for 33 percent from the line. Saint Joe also had 44 rebounds, compared to 30 for Calumet.

A lopsided 73-54 victory was claimed by the Pumas over Illinois Benedictine Dec. 15.

Pam Bell led the team with 19 points. Radivan and Voreis contributed 12 points each as the Pumas shot 32-76 (42 percent) from the field while IBC hit 22-63 (40 percent).

Trainers Gain Experience

By BRAD CANGANY

Saint Joseph's athletic training program is one of the finest in the state. Under the direction of Brad Smith, Saint Joe's offers student trainers firsthand experience in working with athletes the moment they arrive at Collegeville.

The responsibilities of an athletic trainer are more demanding than simply taping ankles. According to Smith, "The description of an athletic trainer's job is the prevention of injury. This gives me two basic jobs, that of injury recognition and of taping and rehabilitation. I also advise the coaches on stretching and conditioning drills which help avoid injuries."

Smith attended Purdue University and became a student trainer in order to stay close to sports. With the help of David Craig, then a senior at Purdue and now the trainer for the Indiana Pacers, Smith entered Purdue's exclusive student training program. After graduation, he matriculated at the University of Arizona, which has one of the finest graduate programs for athletic training in the country.

After graduating, Smith was hired by Saint Joe's and has been here for five years. In addition to maintaining Saint Joe's high standard of athletic training, he has done work for both the Chicago Bears and Indiana Pacers and last summer he was invited to work with the United States Olympic team in Colorado Springs, Colo.

BRAD SMITH

Despite his expertise, Smith is the first to admit that Saint Joe's could not maintain its quality training program without a dedicated group of competent student trainers. Smith has developed a complete program which enables students to become eligible for trainer certification upon graduation from Saint Joe's. He explains, "I recruit high school trainers by offering them work experience they might not get at a larger school. I try to recruit so I have at least one trainer in each class, and I also try to guide them toward a specific sport."

Smith's program also includes job placement for his graduating students. "I am currently promoting the idea of full-time athletic trainers for high schools. Some of the area schools have expressed interest," he points out. "Even if the students don't become athletic trainers, some plan to use their knowledge as an aid in other fields, such as coaching."

Assisting Smith this year are Allen Borck, Mary Ann Dudka, Ron Gunter, Mike Haberman, Deb LaCasse, Gary Shoppell and two women's varsity players — Katie Flynn and Leona Fournier.

Sports which keep Smith and his student trainers the busiest are football and women's sports. Says Smith, "Football is the most demanding for us simply because of the multitude and magnitude of the injuries. Women's sports are demanding because they have grown so quickly in the last few years. Some girls have come here to play varsity sports with a deficient athletic background which has made them more susceptible to injury. The women suffer from unpreparedness which only time will cure." On the other side of the coin, Smith finds track and cross country as the easiest sports to care for. Those athletes know best how to stretch their muscles and condition themselves year-around.

Finally, Smith points out that Saint Joe's athletic training program has always been superior. "The man I replaced, Red Kenney, had been greatly respected on a national level and the trainer before him, Bernie Lareau, currently is trainer for the San Antonio Spurs professional basketball team. There is also a former Saint Joe student trainer who is with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, so Saint Joe's has a deservedly fine reputation in athletic training."

Alumni Association Allocates $20,000 To HSUB For Snack Bar Renovation

By ALLISON FRANCIS

Saint Joseph's Alumni Association has provided a gift of $20,000 to the Halleck Student Union Board to cover the renovation and redecoration of the Halleck Center basement snack bar area, it has been announced by Dr. Kenneth Ahler, president of the Alumni Association, and Brother Gerard Von Hagel, executive director of the Alumni Association.

The Halleck Student Union Board presented the proposal to the Alumni Association in hope of receiving support in their effort to make Halleck Center's basement a genuine area of campus unity.

Dr. Ahler comments, "Since

1962, Halleck Center has not been a unified gathering place on campus; rather, unity has been centered in the individual dorms and rooms, thus detracting from the campus-wide sense of unity. HSUB and the Alumni Association would like to see the renovated Halleck Center basement and snack bar area as a new focal point of campus life."

Many reasons can be suggested for the concentration of campus life in the dorms. One can be attributed to the relaxation of rules concerning the appliances allowed in the dorm rooms. At one time on the SJC campus, televisions and refrigerators were not allowed in private rooms, but they were present in Raleigh Hall, the student activity center before Halleck Center was built. Now these one-time luxuries are allowed in the individual dorm rooms.

Brother Gerard, who with the help of Diane Jennings will be overseeing the renovation work, was director of Raleigh Hall when the recreation center was popular during 1958-63.

Major changes are in the offering for the snack bar area. HSUB and the Alumni Association hope to see the snack bar area open continuously. Also, they would like to see new menus and the elimination or reduction of institutional food.

College workmen, under the direction of Alfred Hentschel, superintendent of buildings and grounds, will do the major structural work. Students will handle the decorations and finishing touches.

The renovation design will resemble that of a city subway. Tentatively, the decorations will include 14 booths, ten park benches, and three tiffany-type lamps.

Renovation of the Halleck Center basement and snack bar area is scheduled to begin before the end of January and should be completed before the end of the spring semester.

College administrators are confident that the project will be approved by the executive committee of Saint Joseph's Board of Trustees at their meeting Friday at Chicago.

Saint Joseph's finished the 1970's with a 2-6 record. The Pumas put on a good showing Dec. 13 at South Bend when they were beat by only 21 points and displayed some second-half aggressiveness as the Notre Dame Irish bested SJC, 79-58. Saint Joe's powerful forward Neville Brown topped all scorers with 19 points and 13 rebounds. The Pumas picked up a victory here Dec. 15 when they beat Northeastern Illinois, 82-78. Saint Joe led through most of the game, but the Golden Eagles stormed back late and Saint Joe had to rally to win. Three Pumas finished in double figures with Neville Brown's game-high 22 points and six rebounds showing the way.

Saint Joseph's suffered a pair of losses on the road to close out December, with a 115-81 whipping by Wright State Dec. 20, and a 100-94 decision at Northern Kentucky Dec. 22.

Four Pumas tallied in double figures at Wright State while SJC shot 52 percent from the floor and 92 percent from the charity stripe.

Saint Joseph's opened the new year on a dismal note with an 82-66 loss at Tri-State Jan. 2. Tri-State led at halftime, but the Pumas battled back for a 41-39 lead, then fell behind as the hosts went ahead and never looked back.

On Jan. 5, the Pumas registered one of their most impressive performances during a 92-77 victory over Oakland University of Rochester, Mich. Saint Joe took an early 30-15 lead and built the margin to 64-46 early in the second half before coasting home to victory. Neil Brown led SJC with 21 points.

Two nights later, Northern Kentucky bagged 56 percent of its field goals en route to an 85-74 victory over the Pumas. Neville Brown led the Saints with 14 points and 12 rebounds.

Then came the season's major upset, a 90-88 Puma demolition of Division I Butler here Jan. 9. Saint Joe scored seven straight points in the final 100 seconds to convert an 84-83 deficit into a 90-84 Puma lead and seal the victory. Neil Brown topped the Pumas with 25 points.

Last Saturday, the Pumas claimed their first road victory of the season, a 96-90 win at Indiana Central. Kates led SJC with 23 points as the Pumas shot .515 from the field, outrebounded the hosts 50-32 and limited the Greyhounds to 15 points during the first 15 minutes of the second half.

Saint Joseph's Student Association held a five-on-five basketball tournament just before Christmas recess in the fieldhouse. It was one of the best-attended S.A. functions during the first semester.
